RAISE THE BAR in short…

"Raise the Bar" aims to promote schools' preparedness and teachers' professional development to increase the quality of global education in schools and teachers' training through anti-racist innovative pedagogical methodologies and practices; to develop training for teachers on anti-racist pedagogies; to promote anti-racism and active citizenship among students; to offer recommendations to schools and school managers on anti-racist global education.
Thus, it will offer opportunities for professional development, through a professional continuous training programme for teachers based on innovative educational approaches that aim to contribute to the improvement of their practices, while responding to critical social needs in terms of inclusion and diversity. It will also impact students (10-16 years) by promoting their social, civic and intercultural competences, democratic values, fundamental rights, social inclusion, non-discrimination and active participation in society regarding racism, power relations and social justice. It will also produce a policy paper to offer policy making, curricula and organisational recommendations for schools on the implementation of anti-racist and global education. These project results will then be disseminated through consistent communication and dissemination strategies among partners' networks and associated partners to ensure their potential of exploitation and the project results' sustainability after the end of the project.
